Application Information

5. Please describe the intended use and purpose of your request to access the API. Be as detailed as possible. *

I am a retired engineer living in Chicago, USA, working on a website palomasorrery.com that is oriented towards astronomy and earth science. As an important part of the earth science work, I am interested in food insecurity. I believe that IPC data and its associated information would provide valuable data for this work. The public facing component is the web site, palomasorrery.com, and also my Instagram account palomas_orrery. The underlying Python code for the visualizations is stored in my GitHub account, https://github.com/tonylquintanilla/palomas_orrery. My intent is to use IPC data initially to illustrate current food insecurity regions in East Africa, particularly Sudan. My philosophy is to be accurate and use reliable data with correct citations and I would follow any protocols IPC has in that regard. Thank you for your consideration. Tony Quintanilla

6. Is the application for internal (access reserved to your organization) or external use (public or semi-public access via website or open application) *

External

7. Where possible, please provide a link to the website or application where the IPC and/or CH data will be visible:

palomasorrery.com Instagram: palomas_orrery

8. Please provide information on the intended frequency of updates of your application? *

☐ Daily

☐ Weekly

- ☐ Monthly
- ☐ Near real-time (immediately after an IPC analysis is published)
- ☒ occasional as situations require

9. Optional: your API key will be enable by default to access all the main endpoints, however, would you need to access Cadre Harmonisé (CH - covering West Africa) results or to work with Vector tiles, please tick the appropriate box below.

The default endpoints - from both the "public" and the "developer" section in our documentation - will give you access to areas and country level results, complete population tables, GeoJSON formats, etc. To learn more about the API endpoints please refer to the API documentation: <https://docs.api.ipcinfo.org/>

- ☐ CH results
